Key components of our clinical excellence

Precision cancer treatment

The era of precision cancer treatment is bringing cancer care to a cellular level. New and developing tools, such as advanced genomic testing, targeted therapy and immunotherapy, are designed to zero in on molecular characteristics that allow a tumor to grow or evade the immune system. The information we learn about specific mutations driving a particular cancer may help us match the specifics with drugs designed to counteract those behaviors. At CTCA, our cancer experts are committed to delivering innovative diagnostic and treatment options whenever possible.

Clinical trials

At CTCA, we offer clinical trials as part of our commitment to help qualified cancer patients get access to new and innovative treatment options. The research team at CTCA identifies and studies new and emerging treatment options that are supported by scientific and investigational research. Our goal is to find trials with the strongest likelihood of positively impacting our patients, especially those with advanced cancer or who may have run out of standard-of-care approaches.
