Hotel Colorado - A Glenwood Springs Historic Hotel

Come delight in our famous lodging property, well-appointed rooms, fine dining, and Glenwood's local attractions.

If you're looking for the perfect Colorado destination, you've found it. Hotel Colorado has been delighting guests with its legendary hospitality since 1893, and we can't wait to welcome you. Our hotel is located right in downtown Glenwood Springs, mere steps from Glenwood Hot Springs. Guests love our proximity to Iron Mountain Hot Springs, Yampah Spa, and Glenwood Caverns Adventure Park, all surrounded by the vast and beautiful White River National Forest. The area is rich with outdoor recreation opportunities, with stunning hiking and mountain biking experiences, skiing and snowboarding at Aspen/Snowmass, white-water rafting in Glenwood Canyon, and world-class fishing on the Roaring Fork River.

Where will your adventure take you?

History

Step Back in Time at Hotel Colorado

At Hotel Colorado, we invite you to step back in time and enjoy life at a slower pace. We are proud of our more than 125 years of service and of helping guests create lasting memories.

When this historic hotel was built in 1893 by Walter Devereux - a silver baron and one of the early settlers of Glenwood Springs - the west was booming. The promise of a fortune built on gold and silver mining was tantalizing for thousands, and those with an adventurous spirit were moving west to explore a new way of living, far from the confines of bustling cities.

Glenwood Springs, notable for its healing hot springs, was brimming with potential as a destination for travelers and locals alike - and early settlers capitalized on this potential.

Devereux sought to attract the wealthy and elite to his "Grande Dame," as Hotel Colorado was fondly called at the time. A 185-foot tall fountain of water marked the center of the courtyard, and a European-style spa was an attractive draw for health-seekers during the early years of Hotel Colorado. No expense was spared in the construction of the hotel, which included amenities and attractions like tennis courts, a Victorian garden, a bird sanctuary, and a stunning indoor waterfall. The hotel has been used as a temporary White House, as a place of healing for the Navy during the World War II years, and a community focal point from its inception. Ownership changed hands frequently until the early 1990s, when the hotel was gradually restored to its former glory.

Today, Hotel Colorado is a beautiful step back in time, inviting you to enjoy the cool mountain air, healing hot springs, exceptional service, and memories made with your loved ones. We look forward to our next 125 years of providing legendary hospitality.
